Campus Engagement & Implementation Handbook

C. Branding and Positioning

- Activities should be presented under the student organization's initiative
- Homestead Resources should be referenced as a supporting or contributing organization
- Direct external promotion should be avoided

V. Workshops, Panels and Educational Events

This section outlines the exact operational steps required to plan and execute workshops, panels, and similar events at Purdue University.

A. Workshops:

Implementation steps:

- Partner with a student organization or department
- Define topic areas (e.g., budgeting, housing expenses, credit management)
- Student Organization must Submit an Activity Planning Form
- Student Organization must also reserve a room through the appropriate university system (Purdue EMS)
- Coordinate promotion through approved student channels

B. Panel Discussions:

Implementation Steps:

- Identify speakers (e.g., Homestead representatives, students, faculty)
- Partner with a hosting organization or department
- Reserve venue and submit required approvals (APF)
- Promote through student networks and organizations.

I. Purpose of this Document:

This handbook provides a structured guide for Homestead Resources to effectively engage with students at Purdue University. It outlines the institutional requirements, approved channels, and step-by-step processes necessary to implement initiatives such as surveys, workshops, tabling, and collaborative programs on campus.

II. University Policies and Engagement Requirements:

Purdue University regulates on-campus activities to ensure alignment with institutional policies and student interests.

Important:

External organizations are not permitted to independently host, promote, or conduct activities on campus.

Therefore, all Homestead initiatives must be conducted through:

- A Recognized Student Organization (RSO)
- Or an official Purdue department or administrative unit

This requirement forms the foundation of all engagement strategies.

VI. Classroom Integration

Integrating content into academic settings provides high impact engagement

A. Opportunities:

- Guest Lectures
- Short Instructional sessions
- Workshop modules within existing courses

B. Implementation steps:

- Identify relevant courses
- Contact faculty members or departments administrators
- Propose a structured session aligned with course objectives
- Coordinate scheduling and content delivery

VII. Promotion and Communication Channels

A. Approved Channels:

- Student Organization email lists
- Group messaging platforms
- Social media
- Approved campus bulletin boards

B. Restrictions:

- External organizations may not independently advertise on campus
- All promotion must be conducted through an approved Purdue Entity

III. Primary Channels for Campus Engagement

A. Student Organizations

Student organizations provide the most efficient and flexible pathway for engagement.

Process:

- Identify relevant organizations using Boiler Link (Purdue's student organization platform)
- Contact organizational leadership (President, Vice President, or Events Coordinator)
- Propose collaboration (e.g., workshops, surveys, co-hosted events)
- Finalize logistics and roles
- The student organization submits required approvals on behalf of the initiative

Advantages:

- Faster implementation
- Direct access to student networks
- Lower administrative barriers

B. University Departments and Administrative Units

Engagement through departments enables broader reach and institutional credibility.

Relevant Offices May Include:

- Financial Aid Office
- Student Life and Residential Education
- Career Services

VIII. Compliance and Best Practices

To ensure successful integration, Homestead Resources should:

- Maintain an educational (non-commercial) focus
- Avoid direct solicitation or advisory liability
- Ensure all materials align with university guidelines
- Respect timelines and approval processes

IX. Strategic Outlook and Implementation Path Forward

Effective engagement at Purdue University requires a structured approach aligned with university policies and established channels. As an external organization, Homestead Resources must operate through recognized student organizations and academic departments to implement its initiatives.

By adhering to the processes outlined in this handbook, the organization can establish a consistent and credible presence on campus. This approach supports scalable engagement, improves student participation, and enables the development of programs that address the financial needs of the student population.

Process:

- Identify appropriate department
- Initiate formal communication with staff or administrators
- Propose program integration (e.g., workshops, seminars, resource development)
- Coordinate scheduling and compliance requirements

Considerations:

- Longer approval timelines
- Greater potential for scale and institutional integration

IV. Tabling on Campus:

A. Requirements:

- Must be conducted through a Recognized Student Organization (RSO)
- Must receive prior approval

B. Step by Step Process

- Secure a Student Organization Partner
 - A recognized student organization (e.g., 180 Degrees Consulting) must sponsor and host the activity.
- Submit Activity Planning Form (Done by RSO)
- Reserve Tabling Space through Purdue EMS (Done by RSO)
- Prepare materials for the tabling.
